

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation. Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy.

Sinclair's unprecedented move to smear a presidential candidate weeks before the election is direct electioneering by a media giant and is against federal election law. It is the FCC's responsibility to halt Sinclair's attempts to influence the election. Thank you.
